
Promoting Ethical Academic Behavior

The Center for Lifelong Learning, together with the Central Library of Charles University, organizes a seminar on the topic of promoting ethical academic behavior. The lecturer will be Deborah Novakova, Head of the Academic Skills Center at CERGE-EI, who has long been dedicated to raising awareness of academic integrity.

Promoting Ethical Academic Behavior

Issues around violations of academic integrity, particularly student cheating and plagiarism, are becoming the focus of more and more practical research. The “Promoting Ethical Academic Behavior” seminar focuses on practical strategies professors and institutions can use to support ethical behavior. The seminar is specifically aimed at the classroom and institutional levels.

The seminar is in the pilot stage and participant input after the event is welcomed as we continue to develop the work.

The seminar will be held in English.

The date: 3rd of October

Time: 15.00 - 17.00 pm
